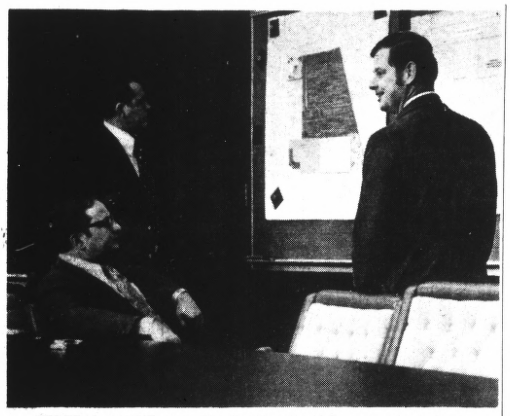
Preliminary Park Grant OK



FEDERAL GRANT—Daly City City Mgr. David Rowe explains to Councilmen Victor Kyriakis (seated) and McRobert Stewart where federal grant funds will be spent at Lincoln Park to expand facility. Also attending briefing in City Hall last week was a contingent of senior citizens led by Mrs. Virgel Davis. (Post Photo)

Preliminary approval of a federal grant totaling some $90,000 to be used for expansion of Lincoln Park in the eastern section of Daly City has been received, Mayor Bernard Lycett announced today.

It was understood to be the first such grant for park expansion in that part of the city in more than a decade.

The city is required to match the federal funds with an additional $110,000 of its own money. The total of $200,000 will be used for land acquisition adjacent to the park site.

The first phase of the project, according to City Manager David Rowe, will be to purchase five or six homes next to the park. Those homes will be bought under Federal Acquisition and Relocation regulations since part of the funds will come from the government's Open Space Grant Program.

The city's general plan, adopted in 1968 following extensive hearings and participation by a large citizen's advisory committee, recommended expansion of the park to the size of two full city blocks.

Since 1968 the city has tried to obtain federal funds to expand the park, Vice Mayor McRobert Stewart explained.

Rowe said the $200,000 is only the first phase of a project that will hopefully continue for several years. The total cost of the expansion program is expeted to be more than $1.5 million.

Although completion of the Lincoln Park projects is still several years away, Lycett noted that the additional land to be acquired with the phase one grant will enable the present park clubhouse to be enlarged.

Currently the clubhouse, used by various community groups such as senior citizens, is considered far too small to carry on successful programs for these groups, Lycett pointed out.

He said the senior citizens' membership had outgrown the Lincoln Park Clubhouse and that that group had been pressuring the city council to enlarge the structure.

The staff of the Recreation and Parks Department under the supervision of Charles Vincent is now developing plans for expansion which would be budgeted from city funds, it was explained.

Also supporting this project is the recently completed Citizens' Advisory Committee on Redevelopment. This 25-member appointed body included in its report, compiled over a one-year period, recommendation that Lincoln Park be included in a n.y redevelopment-rehabilitation program affecting that area of the city.

The study report indicates a serious deficiency in park space in the area east of Mission Street.

Rowe said it was possible that redevelopment funds could provide a source of money necessary to complete the park project.

The city council will now have to incorporate the project into the city's annual budget, and, working with the Park and Recreation Commission, develop and adopt a master plan for the park.

THE POST

Two North County Men Cited for Sea Rescue

Citations for rescuing part of the crew of a burning freighter in the South China Sea were awarded recently to the giant ship Golden Bear of Pacific Far East Line and to members of its crew, including two North San Mateo County men.

Captain Emil Trinny accepted the award from Thomas J. Patterson Jr., western regional director of the Maritime Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

According to the citation, signed by Robert J. Blackwell, assistant secretary of commerce for maritime affairs, the Golden Bear sighted the Liberian freighter Gelinda afire from bow to stern last June 8, while en route from Hong Kong to Subic Bay in the Philippines.

Captain Trinny speedily maneuvered the 26,000-ton lighter-

In a brief ceremony aboard the Golden Bear, Patterson also presented a citation to one of the crewmen of the rescue lifeboat, Able Seaman Karl Gunnar Roos, of San Francisco. The awards praise the skill and speed with which the rescue operation was executed "in the best traditions of American seamanship."

Former members of the Golden Bear's crew who manned the lifeboat also will be given citations. They are:

Chief Officer Ian McLeod, Huntington Beach; First Assistant Engineer Robert F. Debel, San Bruno; Second Assistant Engineer William Ayers of Van Nuys; Able Seaman Reginald B. Jacobs, Fresno; Able Seaman Calvin Browning, Loudonville, Ohio, and Wiper Monico R. Martinez, Daly City.

The carrier close enough to lower a boat and pick six of the Gelinda's crew from the water, where they had leaped to escape the flames. They were subsequently repatriated to Hong Kong aboard a Japanese ship.

Gellert Park Grant Denied By HUD

While approving a federal grant of $90,000 for expansion of one Daly City public park last week the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development rejected an application for funds to construct facilities at another park.

The $90,000 matching grant was for expansion of Lincoln Park in the eastern section of the city, while application for funds fo construct phase two at the Gellert Park site in Serramonte was turned down by HUD.

HUD area director James H. Price said activities described in the city's proposal "are ineligible under the Open Space Land Program."

The Gellert Park application concerned construction of a gymnasium. HUD said the gym did not fit into its current priority program regulations.

Action Due Today on New Intermediate School in D.C.

Construction of a new school facility at a cost of $1.8 million in the St. Francis Heights section of Daly City will be acted upon by the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees tonight.

Opposition on the matter is mounting with at least two school trustees vowing to "bring out the full facts" on the issue at the meeting.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, said her opposition to the school is based on location.

"This is simply a case of building a school where it isn't needed," she said.

Mrs. Adams said the public is being misled by Superintendent Frank Greenwood on the subject of cutbacks in busing.

Greenwood, in an 11-page report on the need for the school in an area surrounded by convalescent homes, medical-dental building and a shopping plaza, said the proposed school scheduling would allow for a cutback of six buses, saving the district thousands of dollars.

"This isn't true," Mrs. Adams says.

She said the district is now experiencing a decline in student attendance and the proposed shifting of students out of two schools on the east side would result in additional busing to the new site.

Further, the Sacramento based Department of Intergroup Relation has informed the JESD several schools on the east side of the city are out of racial balance.

What the consequences for not solving this imbalance problem might be is not known at this time.

But the specter of busing on a wider scale than Daly City citizens have ever known could be experienced within three years — perhaps less.

In 1975 the Field Act comes into effect.

This law states that all San Francisco schools that do not meet earthquake safety requirements cannot continue to house children.

San Francisco has at least a dozen schools at this time that do not meet these rigid requirements. Parents have already voiced their concern to the government.

If San Francisco must close these schools, children can be expected to be bused into Daly City and other "outside" districts, Mrs. Adams predicted.

San Francisco will, of course, look arcund for those districts that have the needed classrooms to house the children — and Daly City will have that room.

"There is no law on the books on this matter now, but it only takes a couple of months to get such a law on the books," she said. "San Francisco legislators, as experience has shown, are much more adept at pushing through laws in the state legislature.

Pacifican on Coast Board

Mayor Grace McCarthy of Pacifica was named last week by the Cities' Selection Committee as representative of the cities of San Mateo County on the Central Coast Regional Conservation Commission.

Her selection was by unanimous acclaim as was that of Mayor Joe Marmont of Half Moon Bay as her non-voting alternate.

Mrs. McCarthy's name was put into nomination by San Mateo Mayor John J. Murray, who said that while some members of the committee might feel that her representation of a Coastside city would place her too close to some of the problems, he felt that her intimate knowledge of such sensitive problems more than qualify her for the position. All agreed.

Mrs. McCarthy expressed her appreciation for the unanimous vote and said she would do her utmost to represent the public interest.

Prior to voting on the commissioner, the Committee organized itself, carefully following rules and regulations outlined in the Coastal Initiative, Proposition 20, creating itself as the appointive body. County Clerk Marvin Church conducted the meeting and explained requirements pending selection of a permanent chairman.

Mayor Bud Lycett of Daly City was elected chairman and Murray was named vice chairman.

At the same time the committee scheduled an annual meeting for the third Monday in May, following the annual April reorganizations of city councils. The law governing the selection committee requires that it be composed of one legislative representative of each city. The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday appointed its chairman, Gerald F. Day of Belmont, as its representative on the regional commission.

New Planner Is Selected In Daly City

The Daly City council completed their holiday season business in record time on December 26, continuing one major item and appointing a replacement for resigned Planning Commissioner Victor Kyriakis.

At the conclusion of the regular business, Mayor Bernari Lycett asked the council for nominations to replace recently appointed councilman Kyriakis on the Planning Commission.

The council unanimously approved the appointment of LeRoy Franzoin, local flower shipper and grower.

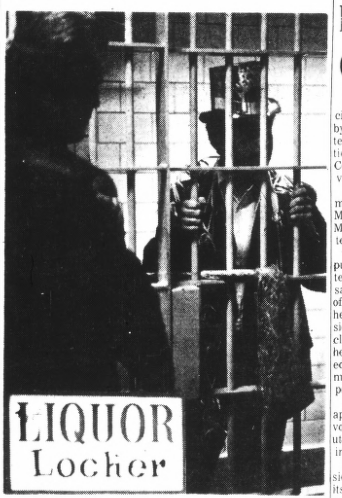
In less than an hour the five member councils also:

Discussed a proposed amendment to the city's general plan providing for location of the Bay Area Rapid Transit line to International Airport through the city.

— Concurrence with the City Planning Commission denying a rezoning permit to Willrader and Guenther Associates for construction of a six-unit apartment house on the north side of Bastlake Avenue.

— Recommended approval of an environmental impact report on a proposed water reservoir and pumping station on Margate Street.

— Continued discussion on a use permit for REA Company concerning construction of a 278-unit apartment complex



New Year, Old Story

THIS IS HOW more than half a hundred San Mateo motorists spent the first day of the New Year. At last count some 64 motorists had been booked into Peninsula jails on charges of drunk driving. The particular picture of unhappiness published here was posed with Bill Himenes of San Bruno whooping it up from his dreary cell while San Bruno policeman Larry Clifford looks on. You might say it was a sobering experience to those caught in the liquor lockup. (Post Photo)

Colma Tax Base Up, Population Is Stable

The population of Colma has remained at the 500 mark during the past year but the city's tax base has mushroomed to an all time high.

Assessed valuation figures for the year 1972-72 totaled $7,485,305 in county secured lands. Net figures on land improvements were reported at year's end to be in excess of $3,791,434 and personal property stayed at a relatively low $140,722.

This dramatic increase in assessed valuation had such a marked affect on taxes for Colma the "Cemetery City" decided to do away with the so-called burial tax.

This was actually not a "tax" but a fee attached to funerals in the city collected by various cemeteries and from funerals and turned over to the city.

In the 1972 session, incumbent city councilman Glen Duncan was voted out of office and Fred Garbini, a former city mayor, was voted to replace him. Garbini is an employee of the Greyhound Company while all other council members are cemetery affiliated in their businesses.

Some cemetery held lands were taxed at a higher rate by the county in 1972, indicating a trend to force cemeteries to use their lands solely for non-profit burial use and less for private profit making ventures.

Colma felt the ravages of one of the largest downpours in history, causing Colma Creek to overflow its bankds and inflict substantial damage on some businesses and homes fronting the creek.

The influx of commercial businesses, such as motor car companies, discount stores and supermarkets, in an area easterly of Junipero Serra Boulevard, was responsible for the expanding tax base.

Vandals Hit D.C. School

Vandals inflicted considerable damage to the M. Pauline Brown School in Daly City on Monday, destroying a drinking fountain, smashing 21 windows and digging holes in the lawn.

School officials are expected to submit estimates of the damage to police today.

2 Bruno Councilmen Upset Over Airport Land Use Ban

A proposed interim airport land use plan intended to prevent further construction of housing within areas of extreme airport noise, received a high velocity reaction from two San Bruno councilmen last week.

Both Councilmen John Barnard and Neil Christal were less than satisfied with the proposal.

Councilman Tony Governale found himself defending it. He has been Council liason to the Airport Land Use Commission, which is a part of the Regional Planning Committee.

"Is it the responsibility of San Bruno to quell the noise at the airport?" asked Barnard rhetorically. "We are expected to accept the responsibility for their landings and takeoffs. Ridiculous."

Christal said that "Airport Land Use Plan" is a misnomer. "I don't need a land use plan to tell me where the noise is. I can just stand out in the street."

While Barnard and Christal believe that it is up to the airport "to clean their own house first," Governale's contention is that "failure to adopt the plan is failure to live with the fact that commercial aircraft exists."

Basically, the plan suggests a proposed set of controls which will affect land uses within certain high noise level areas beneath the approach and take-off end of the airport runway.

State law allows an adjacent city affected by the plan to hold public hearings. If there is disagreement with the plan, a four-fifth vote by any affected city's official body can overrule all or any part of the plan.

Christal says this approach means the city is abdicating its authority to the commission. He says the city should outline what it wants and let the commission work around that.

"They're saying this is what will be done, unless you come up with a four-fifths vote," said Christal.

The plan proposes different sound level criteria for San Francisco International Airport than San Bruno's backyard, than it does for the Half Moon Bay and San Carlos airports.

Resident Mike Kaiser, 529 Fifth Avenue, an airlines employe, pointed out that Foster City carries more weight than San Bruno concerning opposing airplane noise.

That's because you have let it go so long. Now you're trying to close the barn door. The best pressure (to lower the noise level) is to pass an ordinance that will shut down the airport on certain hours during the night," said Kaiser. He said St. Paul-Minneapolis and Washington, D.C., airports already do this.

Floods, Political Battles Mark 1972 in S.S.F.

By JACK BIK

The past year may have been a year of changes for South San Francisco — but it is nothing compared to what can be expected for 1973.

As City Manager Gale Dreisbach outlined the goals for the coming year, it appeared evident that South San Franciscans can expect many more changes in their city than they have.

Biggest change was South San Francisco's change in the balance of power. In April, veteran councilman Frank Bertucelli left office and he was succeeded by the first Westborough resident to be elected to the council — Gordon Bobblit.

Previously, councilmen Frank Mammini and Warren Steirkamp had been a minority on the council, critical of many aspects of city government. With Bobblit's election, they became part of the majority, and by the end of the year, councilmen Patrick Ahern and William A. Borba, both former mayors, found themselves in the position of critics.

In June, the city council signed a contract with the VTN engineering firm to take over operation of several city departments, including engineering, streets, public works, parks and recreation. This history-making contract — the first time that a private firm has contracted to take over municipal functions in an established city, at least in northern California — has been the center of continuing controversy in South San Francisco politics this year.

Mayor Frank Mammini insists that the contract has been saving the city money at no reduction in services, citing, as of November 8, a $577,275 saving — of which almost half would be dependent upon the city council approving VTN's recommendations.

Meanwhile Councilmen William Borba and Patrick Ahern — who had originally approved the $31,000 VTN contract — have been sniping away at various aspects of the arrangement, including the high hourly rates VTN charges the city, the additional charges which come outside the $31,000 contract, and the way services are performed.

Because six employes of the engineering department were suddenly fired because their jobs were eliminated by the VTN contract, there had been some decrease in morale among city employes, who have complained that civil services is being undermined.

The extent of the dissatisfaction has been indicated by such signs as the large number — approaching 40 — of city employes who have left since June, and the fact that every member of the fire department signed a petition of protest to hiring of new Fire Chief Lawrence A. Toellner from Oakland.

Mammini, who says that the cities are being forced to seek new ways to produce revenue and provide services, answers that cities must be operated for the benefit of residents and taxpayers, and not just for their employes. Nevertheless, it appears to the problem of employe morale will continue to plague the City of South San Francisco into 1973.

Dreisbach, meanwhile, describes the contract with VTN as strictly experimental, which the council may decide to continue, change or scrap during 1973. It thus provides a note of uncertainty in organization of city government. However, major goals for 1973 remain unchanged.

Once such goal was moved up in priority by an act of God. On October 11, an unseasonal, record downpour took place which inflicted millions of dollars of damage on homes and businesses along the length of Colma Creek, as it meanders through numerous residential and business neighborhoods of the city.

Although the city has been working on the project since 1955, the council decided in November to pursue the possibility of building the project on a local basis, rather than wait until 1980 for the Army Corps of Engineers to do it.

The Army Corps estimated the project to cost $17 million. Fred Hull, director of the Department of Ecological Development, however, as well as VTN project head for South San Francisco, now says it can be done, on a local basis, for $5.4 million.

Another major project for South San Francisco will be its new police facility, estimated to cost $2½ million, to be located on Grand and Chestnut Avenues. Sure to evoke some controversy will be the decision to build it on a lease-purchase method which will avoid a bond election.

Only three cut of the 10 acres in the proposed site would be needed for a police facility. However, there now appears to be a possibility that the remainder of the site may be used for a new corporation yard, now located at the Orange Avenue Park. A new central firehouse may replace the Buri Buri firehouse.

Expansion of the Oyster Point Marina will be an issue in 1973. Hull proposes a six-month study to be done by VTN at a consultant fee of $60,000 to $65,000. The facility now costs the city money; VTN claims that if it were enlarged and improved, it could earn the city a great deal of income as well as providing a good deal of recreation and prestige. Income would come from such concessions as a marina chandlery, board repair facilities, restaurants and specialty shops, as well as additional boats.

A host of other projects affecting every neighborhood in South San Francisco is also awaiting in the wings for 1973's debut, according to Dreisbach.

Many road projects are in the works. A project on South Airport Boulevard would provide for extension of Freeway 380 into South San Francisco, and provide direct access for local industries to Junipero Serra Freeway. On the other end of the city, work is in progress in extending Gellert Boulevard from Westborough Boulevard to King Drive. Between them, there remains a stretch of El Camino Real, to be widened to the Colma city boundaries.

The cross-county route through South San Francisco, begun with extension of Westborough Boulevard from Junipero Serra to El Camino Real, may be completed with widening of Chestnut Avenue and Hillside Boulevard.

South San Francisco may even grow in territory. The Local Agency Formation Commission has recommended annexation of the south slope of San Bruno Mountain by South San Francisco.

Challenges face the economic base of South San Francisco, with its largest store, White Front, closing in January, and the downtown business section facing the danger of deterioration unless some kind of action to reverse the process is taken.

Meanwhile, industrial and residential construction continues.

Only elections scheduled for South San Francisco is the election for school trustee. Although the district has had a rather turbulent history, the past year has been an unusually calm one for the district, as pupil growth has slowed down, enabling the district to catch up. A big problem in the past has been relations with the two teacher organizations. The past year may be considered the year in which a working agreement was worked out between teachers and administration.

The district is still operating on tightened budgets, and facing the problem of an overcrowded Westborough Junior High School, while enrollment has been declining in many other schools.

A class action suit charging sex discrimination in shop classes was filed late in the year, and may be heard in 1973.

MRS. MARGARET KEOUGH, Children's Home Society director of auxiliaries, and Sand Castles President Marge Baumgartner discuss the new decor of the room where prospective parents are first shown the baby they hope to adopt.

Four Hurt in SSF Crash; Police Arrest One Driver

A 22-year-old San Francisco man went to jail following a New Year's Day collision in South San Francisco in which four persons were injured, at least one seriously.

Charged with felony drunk driving and hit-run is Jose Bonite Jr., of 351 Highland Avenue, San Francisco. Held in lieu of $2,000 bail, he was to appear Tuesday in Northern Judicial District Court.

According to police, cars driven by Bonite and of Louis Giotfredi, 50, also of San Francisco, were headed northbound on El Camino Real, just north of Arroyo Drive, at 2:40 a.m., when Bonite made a turn in front of Giotfredi, resulting in the collision.

Bonite, and his passenger, Robert Diwa, 18, also of San Francisco, left their car and fled on foot, police said. Both bleeding around their heads, they walked over a mile to Kaiser Hospital for treatment of their injuries. Police arrested Bonite at Kaiser at 6 a.m.

Also injured, in the other car, were Virginia Giofreddi, 47, who received a fractured pelvis, and Donna McCloud, 37, San Francisco, who received facial lacerations. They were rushed by ambulance to Mary's Help Hospital for treatment.

Suspect in Murder Is Arrested

Santa Monica police Friday arrested Robert Marine, 24-year-old suspect in the pistol slaying of his estranged wife, in front of her Colma apartment last October 7.

Police in that Southern California city said detectives Larry Anderson and Russ Martin were waiting inside the suspect's apartment after receiving a tip of his whereabouts.

When Marine entered the apartment shortly before 9 p.m., they ordered him to "freeze."

Marine tried to escape the police trap but a warning shot from a 12-gauge shotgun halted him. He was not hit, police said.

The bullet-ridden body of his 24-year-old ex-wife, Katherine Zyrowski, was found lying in a pool of blood outside her "A" Street apartment last October by residents of the neighborhood. She had been hit by six shots fired at close range.

For the past three months Marine had been the subject of an intensive search in connection with the crime.

Santa Monica police did not say how they found him.

Texan Found Unconscious

John Alan Faubion, 23, of Garland, Tex., who was found lying face down, unconscious, alongside Skyline Boulevard at Skylonda Monday night, was unable to explain to sheriff's deputies what happened, they reported Tuesday.

Robert E. Fabris of South San Francisco reported to Deputy Jack McFall he was turning onto Skyline Boulevard from LaHonda Road when his headlights picked up Faubion at 8:03 p.m.

When he regained consciousness at 9:30 p.m., Faubion reported the only thing he could remember was walking down the road and the next thing waking up at Chope Community Hospital.

McFall said he could find no evidence of assault.

More About Land Use

sented to the council by City Planner Jack Mulqueeney, the different sound level for cities is based on the thought that residents in an urban environment (close to International Airport) have a higher background noise level, and apparently have become acclimated to the noise."

Mulqueeney's comments on the plan brought out other factors which would go into effect if the plan were adopted.

No new residential construction would be permitted in approximately 30 per cent of San Bruno.

No new construction unless noise reduction techniques are included in the design of homes, would be allowed in approximately 40 to 45 per cent of the city.

"It appears that the plan will have a great effect on undeveloped land zoned for residential use," said Mulqueeney's comments.

He added that "the main impact to the city will be when the older homesites re-develop to new residential uses some years hence." These new homes will be required to soundproof. And in some areas no new residences will be allowed to build at all.

According to Mulqueeney, the plan would require that the city's Belle Air School would not be permitted to modernize, with its eventual phasing out at its present site.

Mulqueeney also said the plan would have an effect on 90 per cent of the city's commercial enterprises. It would be in the form of requiring them to analyze their noise reduction requirements prior to any commercial development or redevelopment.

Pacifica Maintains Rapid Growth Rate

By JACK BIK

San Mateo County's fastest growing city showed no letdown in its growth during 1972.

As 1972 ended, a total of 24 housing projects having 5,695 living units with a potential of adding 14,000 people are in various stages of development in Pacifica.

The future of one major project seems doubtful. Many others, however, are already well under construction while new ones are looming on the horizon.

Even with the scaling down of Pacifica's growth because of Proposition 20 and a newly tough-minded planning commission, Pacifica appears to be in for quite a population growth.

The prospect of Pacifica soon having 50,000 people, however, is bringing no cheers from civic leaders, not even from the Chamber of Commerce. The main anxiety for the future in Pacifica revolves around two questions:

1. Will Pacifica be in shape — in terms of civic facilities and economic viability — to handle the increased population?

2. Will the newcomers cut down on the quality of life of those now living in Pacifica?

Meanwhile, Pacifica could boast of at least two major accomplishments during the past year. For one, it started work on a $6 million sewer treatment plant in Sharp Park, which it hopes will take care of the sanitation problem that has plagued the city since before its birth. The plant also includes a deep water outfall which will provide for construction of a 1,000-foot-long fishing pier, thus bringing a new recreation facility to Pacifica.

The other accomplisment is the historical hillside protection ordinance which will govern development of the remaining half of Pacifica's territory.

These accomplishments were accompanied by no little controversy. The pier project in particular was the subject of a "class action" suit by residents of Sharp Park who feared the project would bring redevelopment of their residential area.

These accomplishments were accompanied by no little controversy. The pier project in particular was the subject of a "class action" suit by residents of Sharp Park who feared the project would bring redevelopment of their residential area.

Early in the year, Pacifica saw completion of the widening of its vital link over the hill, Sharp Park Road, but saw delay — perhaps forever — for the Freeway 380 link which many of its civic leaders sought.

Numerous smaller highway improvements punctuated the year, including signalization of Linda Mar Boulevard. Pacifica's older streets remain in miserable condition and are a challenge for 1973. Scheduled next for major improvement is Reina del Mar, in picturesque Vallemar. It will be the principal project among some half-dozen to be done according to neighborhood requests and assessment districts.

Major projects will be completed one after the other in 1973. The Fassler Avenue project — providing a much-needed cross-city street —will be ready for driving on, in early spring. The sewer plant — dubbed America's most beautiful — will go into operation this summer. The plant will include such features as secondary treatment, a 1,000-foot fishing pier along its outfall line, and a second-floor city council meeting chamber.

Passage of County Proposition A, a 10-cent park and open space tax, brings promise of a major park, the size of Golden Gate Park, to be provided for Pacifica's future generations. This 1,000-acre tract involves the headwaters of Pedro Creek along the slopes of Montara Mountain, with age-old forests and waterfalls. Proposition A may also enable eventual county purchase and operation of Pacifica's miles of beaches.

Work continued, meanwhile, on development of Frontier land Park. Working out plans for an amphitheater in the former dump will be a major challenge for 1973.

The coming year should see completion of Pacifica's major senior apartment project, during the spring. The city's first major motel project, the 92-room, $1.5 million Nick Gust Motel at Rockaway Beach, has been started and should be completed during the year.

The past year has seen two new councilmen, Aubrey Lumley and Don Halversen; a new city manager, Dave Thompson; a new finance director, John Pratt, and a new planning director, James Hiller, who is due to take office this week.

On May 21, Pacifica was awarded a plaque designating a national landmark — the Portola Discovery Site.

It has been a rather quiet year for the Laguna Salada School District as school officials sought for a change in state law to bring its income more in line with other districts. It achieved partial success, with the new state revenue bill passed earlier this month. With enrollment dropping, the district sought to catch up on its building program, going back to landscape older schools and improve facilities.

One school project is under construction — a school for the trainable mentally retarded, being built for the county on its Pacific Heights campus.

The only election expected in Pacifica will be for the school board. Terms are coming to an end for Dale Buettgenback, Wilbur Fry and Lee Riewerts. Election day is April 17.

The North Coast County Water District, Pacifica's water department, is taking on a new look with near-completion of its $14,000 corporation yard, under construction since spring. It had been delayed by the cement strike. Landscaping and painting are planned for the building in January.

The major problem for Pacifica has been that its slim tax base — consisting almost entirely of modestly priced homes — and lack of industry or business, has deprived it of an adequate tax base to enable its leaders to take care of major projects needed. There was much hope for the federal revenue sharing program — but Pacifica received far less than cities with comparable population, although $185,000 cannot help but be some aid to the city.

Election Mergers Urged

The City of San Mateo has requested five separate school districts to join with it in consolidating the city election and all school elections scheduled within the city next April.

Copies of the city's recently passed resolution approving such consolidation have gone to County Superintendent of Schools Dr. Russell Kent, Belmont Elementary School District, San Mateo City School District, San Mateo Junior College District, San Mateo Union High School District, and the Sequoia Union High School District.

The San Mateo city election is scheduled for April 3 and the school districts have elections scheduled for April 17.

Under the state Education Code school districts are authorized to consolidate elections with that of a city which contains all or part of their districts. It would be effected by the county superintendent of schools upon written request of the affected districts and city.

San Mateo city and the various districts would share the costs on a pro-rated basis.

Mayor John J. Murray, who has long sought such a consolidation, explained that not only would it represent a major saving to taxpayers, but would minimize the inconvenience in having to go to the polls twice within a two-week period for two separate elections, city and school district.

Furthermore, he noted, it would bring out all office-seekers into the open at an earlier date, enabling voters to better acquaint themselves with issues and candidates.

A similar recommendation has been made by the Council of Mayors Elections Reform Committee created by Murray.

The consolidation must be approved by the County Board of Education, as well as all other school board trustees.

It was approved by the San Mateo City Council at its December 18 meeting.

A copy of the city's resolution, authorizing the consolidation, also asks the county clerk to canvass ballots, since the same canvass request has been made by the superintendent of schools.

San Mateo City Clerk Joan Hinckley, in sending a copy of the resolution notes . . . "In the event consolidation is approved, the city will work with the superintendent of schools to accomplish the consolidation in the most practicable manner so that maximum savings of election costs may be achieved by all agencies concerned."

San Mateo's April ballot is expected to include the election of three councilmen. Murray and Councilmen John Condon and W. L. Burkdall are up for re-election. A proposition to approve an ordinance for a 10-cent tax override for the acquisition and development of parks in San Mateo, probably for a 10-year period, will be submitted to voters. In addition the council may place an estimated $4,000,000 general obligation bond issue for needed sewage and drainage improvements. The council has also periodically discussed placing a question on the ballot to find out of a majority of the city's voters will use a new citywide bus system, costing some $500,000 to develop and about $2030.00 a year to operate.

The council is expected to reach some decisions on what the April ballot will include when it holds its first meeting of the new year on Janrary 3.

Bay Area Conservation Council Has Annual Meet in Pacifica

The Council of Bay Area Resource Conservation Districts held its annual fall meeting at Nick's Rockaway Restaurant in Pacifica with Cleo Sare, a member of the board of directors of San Mateo County Resource Conservation District and vice president of the South Bay Area Council, serving as luncheon host.

Lincoln Thorpe, Bay Area Council president and member of the board of directors of Evergreen RCD in Santa Clara County, presided over the business session, which was attended by approximately 30 directors representing Resource Conservation Districts within the council boundaries.

The luncheon speaker was James L. Kuebelbeck of Half Moon Bay, a land use consultant. His topic, "Legislation and Land Use," was followed by a question and answer period.

Andrew Andresen, area conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service in Watsonville and recently returned to the United States from a three-year assignment in India

Accident Computer Use OK'd

The county and eight cities have agreed to share financing for continuation of a computerized traffic accident records program.

County Engineer S. H. Cantwell informed the Board of Supervisors Tuesday that federal funding for the program, being conducted by Stanford Research Institute, has ended, but that the county and patricipatng cities will put up a total of $13,146 to continue the program until June 30, 1973.

Known as Computerized Accident Records System (CARS), the study provides information as to hazardous street intersections and conditions and is used by the county and cities to help in establishing traffic programs.

Participating with the county are the cities of Burlingame, Foster City, Menlo Park, Pacifica, San Bruno, San Carlos, South San Francisco and Woodside.

Health Chief Calls Domestic Water Contamination Major Problem

San Mateo County is fighting a tough battle to keep supplying its residents with uncontaminated drinking water.

In a report submitted to the County Board of Supervisors last week, County Health and Welfare Director Dr. George Pickett states that the United States previously has "looked down" on so-called "backward" countries which provide the public with unsafe drinking water.

"We now have our own unsolved public health problem," he says, "(and) we can no longer presume that our own water supply is safe to drink."

The major problem, Pickett states, is that of cross-connections, which he defines as any connection or arrangement in water supply systems or plumbing fixtures which permits polluted or contaminated water to enter any part of potable water systems.

Citing a survey made in March, 1972, in the South San Francisco area, Pickett notes that the results indicate that a "program of cross-connection control is essential and steps to protect the public water system must be taken."

Of 10 industrial firms visited, he says, contamination of the plumbing systems were possible at all locations. He cited specifically that backflow due to back pressure was possible at seven locations.

Quoting County Health Engineer Henry Eich, Pickett states in his report:

"In my experience in Los Angeles County, I would make routine inspections of industrial establishments and would encounter a certain percentage of customers without any cross-connections. In our survey in South San Francisco, the opposite was the case. I haven't found a place yet without a serious problem."

Pickett cites many instances of backflow in the county and many potential hazard areas. These cited:

Foster City — A single valved connection between the public potable water supply and the fire sprinkler system in commercial and industrial establishments. In an emergency, water would be drawn from the storm drains or the bay and injected into the fire sprinkler system through the pumper connections, with contaminated water possibly being pumped into the city water supply line.

Redwood City — At the city's port, a single valve connection could exist between the potable and the non-potable water supply system aboard a ship and might permit pumping of contaminated water into the municipal supply should the valve open while the ship is taking on water from the municipal system.

Brisbane — Four prime water lines lead to sewer pumps.

Burlingame — An unprotected water supply line lead to the sewage plant.

South San Francisco — A single valve connection separates the city water supply from fertilized water connected to the city water supply system.

San Bruno — An automatic car wash with a recirculating soap line has a single valve separating the city water supply and the soapy water. A failure two years ago of the valve injected soapy water into the community water system.

Pickett reports that San Mateo County embarked on a "diligent" program 11 months ago to educate plumbers, sanitarans, landscape personnel, park managers and the public to the hazards of cross-connections.

Fotrunately, Pickett says, three plumbers in the county have been certified by the Foundation for Cross-Connection Control Research at the University of Southern California School of Engineering to test for cross-connection problems, and a course to obtain additional testers in the county is being developed with the foundation.

The need is great, Pickett states. He notes that in addition to the area surveyed in South San Francisco, "routine inspections of industrial complexes in other cities indicates that the problem exists uniformly throughout the county."

"Cross-connections can and going viable, diligent program must be controlled," the health of cross-connection control and welfare director says. County Manager W. J. Tarantaterborne disease outbreaks es used that Pickett's information due to cross-connections can be cam was a progress report as a prevented. The public's cer- program which will continue as ified to a safe water supply the hopes of reducing water pol- which can be attained to an ac- lution hazards.

S.F. Woman Is Assaulted

A 20-year-old San Francisco woman told San Bruno police last week that she was raped by two men who dragged her into their car, while she was waiting for a bus at El Camino Real and Sneath Lane.

Police said the woman was waiting at a bus stop at about midnight when the two forced her into the car, drove her to an apartment in San Bruno. She was raped by both men, who held her captive for approximately 90 minutes, police said.

The woman was then driven back to El Camino Real and San Bruno Avenue where she was let out of the car.

Recycling Yule Trees In County

To assist in the ecology program of San Mateo County, County Parks and Recreation Director, Jack Brook, is encouraging county residents to bring their Christmas trees to Coyote Point County Park for recycling by chipping them into usable ground cover for Coyote Point or other county parks.

The old parking area near the junior museum on the knoll in the park will receive trees during the week of January 2 through 7 (Tuesday through Saturday) from dawn to dusk.

MaryAnn Danielson, Chief of the Interpretive Division and Bob Emert, Park Supervisor, will have a crew and chipper to chip the trees.

The event will be an annual one, Brook said.

Serramonte Concert Band Well Received

On December 11 the Serramonte Community Concert Band performed its first public concert in the Little Theater of Serramonte High School.

The performance was well received by the audience and plans are already being made to schedule a second concert in the spring.

The Community Concert Band is made up of musicians who are 18 years and over and wish to perform advanced band music of every variety.

The following music will be rehearsed on January 4, beginning at 7 p.m. at Serramonte High School: Westside Story by Bernstein, No, No, Nanette by Youmans, Pizzicato Polka by Strauss, William Tell by Rossini, Camelot by Lerner-Lowe, and Valley of Enchantment by Ferde Grofe.

Henry Niebolt, a South San Francisco teacher and professional musician directs the band and promised a highly interesting and stimulating musical fare during each rehearsal.

Musicians from anywhere in the Bay Area are eligible to join the band.

Used Sheet Music Fund-Raiser Part

As a new facet to their Annual Used Book Fair, the Friends of the Daly City Library have established the collecting of used sheet music as an additional source of fund-raising and a service to the music-loving public.

Music scores or exercise books not needed because the musician has progressed to more difficult material or perhaps no longer practices, may be recycled and again become useful.

Mrs. Hubert Sandefur, overall Book Fair chairman, reminds everyone that donations of used books and records, as well as sheet music, may be left in depositories at the Bayshore Library, 129 Acacia Street; the John D. Daly Library, 6351 Mission Street; or the Westlake Library, 275 Southgate Avenue.

The assorting and marking of books and other donations are kept current by Mrs. Alvin Schwarzbach, book marking chairman, and her committee in order to avoid a backlog of unprocessed donations.

Mrs. Schwarzbach reports a wide variety of books are sought, including both fiction and non-fiction, paperback and hardback editions. She is specifically looking for more cook books, how-to-do, gardening, home decorating, chemistry, medical, math and children's books.

Funds derived from The Friends' Annual Used Book Fair are used for special expenditures fostering and of benefit to the library.

'Earnest' Tryouts Are On

The Pacifica Spindrift Players announce that tryouts for their next production, Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," began on January 2, 1973, at Sharp Park Community Library, in the community room, Hilton and Palmetto, Pacifica.

The remaining tryouts will be held at Oddstad Park, 1100 block of Crespi Drive, one mile east of Coast Highway 1, Pacifica.

These remaining tryouts will be held on Thursday, January 4, Sunday, January 7 and Tuesday, January 9 from 7-9 p.m., and also on Sunday, January 7 from 2-5 p.m.

Russell D. Cantwell

Right to Preach Is Subject

A well known figure in Jehovah Witnesses long legal fight for the right to preach in the streets and homes will serve the Pacifica congregation soon at their semiannual circuit assembly.

Russell D. Cantwell, whose 1940 court case, Cantwell versus Connecticut took the issue of licensing religious freedom all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court and victory, met recently with the local congregation's overseers and others from the peninsula.

They met to finalize details for the upcoming religious conclave at the East Bay Richmond Memorial Auditorium the weekend of January 13 and 14, 1973.

Cantwell will speak to the assembly's over-2,000 expected delegates on how to be resourceful in making public declaration of their faith.

The assembly, running from 9 a.m. on each of its two mornings, will feature talks, discussions and demonstrations in ministerial training and family living.

Mrs. Jack Loughran has been named chairman for the 19th annual fashion show and luncheon to be sponsored by the Westlake Catholic Women, at the San Francisco Fairmont Hotel, February 3.

Mrs. Alfred Abrahamshon, social director for the Holy Angels Women's Guild, wishes to remind all localites that there will be a very important meeting — of vital concern to the entire community — tonight at 8 p.m. in the parish hall on San Pedro Road.

Lt. Philip La Bruzzo of the Daly City Police Department will present a film and discussion on ways and means of protecting your home from burglary. Men, as well as the women of the community are urged to sit in on this meeting, according to Mrs. John Lagomarsino, publicity chairman.

Accompanying the lieutenant will be two other officers and a display of locks and bolts for private home use.

No reservations are needed and everyone is invited to attend.

Members of the board of directors for the Daly City Friends of the Library will be receiving a first hand account of the recent Joint Convention of the California Library Association and California Friends of the Library held this past month in southern California.

Mrs. Virginia Tirney, president of the local chapter of the Friends of the Library, reports that Mrs. U. R. Kendree, who attended the convention as a representative of the local library board of trustees, and Ed Cavellini, the Daly City Special Services Librarian who attended the conclave as a representative of the Friends of the Library, are expected to brief the board members on the gathering during tomorrow's board of directors meeting.

Of special significance to Daly City people was the re-election of Daly City Friends of the Library member Richard Silver to a second term as treasurer of the Friends of California's Libraries.

In addition to Mrs. Kendree, Cavellini and Silver, the Daly City Library was represented by Mrs. Frank Kelachava of the Board of Trustees and Librarian Samuel Chandler who represented the local Friends of the Library.

A champagne brunch, served beneath the glass covering in the pool area, highlighted the premiere presentation of Princess Cruises newest ship, The Island Princess, to Bay Area dignitaries and company officials and their guests.

The latest addition to Princess Cruises' fleet is scheduled to ply the waters between California ports, the Hawaiian Islands and Mexico according to Stanley McDonald, the president of the line.

Representing Daly City at the ceremonies aboard the liner were Dianne Wagner, Miss Daly City and Miss California for 1972, and Mrs. Murray H. Freedman.

Members of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild have had fair warning from Mrs. Paul Hupf! The chairman of the guild's tray favors workshop indicates the January meeting of the workshop will be very, very busy.

Mrs. Hupf, who cancelled workshops in November and December, reminds everyone that February means Washington's birthday, Lincoln's birthday and Valentine's Day and that means lots and lots of tray favors.

Wrapping up 1972 with a few tidbits we note that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Poggio celebrated their thirty-sixth wedding anniversary in December with an evening in Ghiradelli Square.

Mrs. Michael Orlich is holding a showing of her miniature oils in Hatton's Art Gallery in Sacramento.

Dr. and Mrs. Edward Macklin have just returned from a vacation in Spain.

Mr. and Mrs. Roe L. Ariani visited friends, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Steward in Caracas.

Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Sandefur have returned from a jaunt to San Diego where they visited long-time friends, Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth Taylor.

Rita Barbraitis, the volunteer coordinator for the Florence Crittenton Home, spent the holiday season in the Hawaiian Islands.

Aid for Flood Victims

Court St. Mary 1155, Catholic Daughters of America, in Daly City last November 19 loaded 51 cases of used clothes and 22 cases of canned food for the flood victims of the Philippines on the President Wilson.

Shipping of the relief goods went courtesy of American President Lines.

This collection of clothing and foodstuffs was donated by Catholic Daughters of America courts throughout California as far south as Long Beach, parishioners of St. Patrick's Church in San Francisco, Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church in Daly City and many interested individuals.

The drive was spearheaded by Rev. Fred Al Bitanga, associate pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Court St. Mary 1155 Regent, Mrs. George Day and District Deputy, Mrs. Thomas Baldwin, also of Court St. Mary.

Mrs. Day flew to Manila on December 10 to meet the shipment and turn it over to the Philippine National Red Cross.

She personally made cash donations from the National Court and the State Court of the Catholic Daughters of America to His Emminence, Rufino Cardinal Santos, Archbishop of Manila, for Caritas Philippines (Catholic Charities) to help alleviate the misery of flood victims who lost everything in the recent disaster to hit the Philippines.

SEVEN-YEAR-OLD Vicki Muskat from San Bruno helped her mother dress twenty dolls for this year's contest. Over three hundred dolls in all were dressed by San Mateo camp Fire Girls, Girl Scout groups and individuals, then turned over to The Salvation Army in San Francisco to be given to needy children.

Nell Norton

Good morning and Happy New Year, good cooks.

A good way to start the New Year is with some new cooking ideas. Since chicken appears on the menu quite often, a new way to serve chicken is always appreciated.

SESAME CHICKEN BY MARGY

6 fryer legs and thighs or 6 boned breasts
salt and pepper
½-cup apricot preserves
¼ cup vinegar
2 Tablespoons minced onions
¼ cup cornflake crumbs
one-third cup sesame seeds
melted margarine

Salt and pepper the six boned breasts. Combine the one-half cup apricot preserves with the one-fourth cup vinegar and two tablespoons minced onions. Dip the chicken pieces into apricot mixture. Combine the fourth cup cornflake crumbs with the third cup sesame seeds on wax paper. Roll the chicken in the crumb combination to coat well. (You may need more crumbs, depending on the size of the chicken pieces.)

Brush large shallow pan with melted margarine. Place single layer of chicken in pan. Drizzle with remaining apricot mixture and melted margarine. Bake at 350 degrees 45 to 50 minutes or until chicken is tender and golden brown.

Tired of same old baked, fried or broiled potatoes? Then try this delicious combination of spuds, cream of celery soup and sliced onions.

POTATOES CELERI

6 medium potatoes, peeled and sliced thin
3 medium size onions, sliced thin
1 can condensed cream of celery soup
¼ soup can milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons butter
1 teaspoon parsley flakes

Preheat oven to 350-degrees.

In a well buttered 10-inch casserole arrange layers of the six sliced potatoes and three sliced onions. Combine the can of celery soup, diluted with one-fourth soup can milk. Pour part of the celery soup over each layer, seasoning with salt and pepper. Dot with butter. Sprinkle the teaspoon parsley over top.

Cover and bake in 350-degree oven about one hour or until potatoes are tender.

Since the oven is hot, you might want to serve beets with your chicken and potatoes and here's a receipe for baked beets.

CEIL'S BAKED BEETS

1 can sliced beets, size 303 can
2 Tablespoons butter
2 Tablespoons flour
2 Tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 Tablespoon horseradish
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

Drain the canned beets and add enough water to beet liquid to make one cup. Melt the two tablespoons butter in saucepan. Add two tablespoons flour and blend. Add beet juice and cook until thickened. Blend in the two tablespoons brown sugar, one teaspoon salt and one tablespoon horseradish. Add the drained beets. Pour into small buttered baking dish. Cover with half cup buttered bread crumbs. Bake in 375-degree oven for 25 minutes.

Entertainment On PSA Flights

An airline passenger, sitting blankfaced and bored between flights, turns suddenly to stare into the smiling face of a tall carrot chomping rabbit towering above him.

"Eh, what's up, doc?" the rabbit asked.

"Look, there's Bugs Bunny" a little boy nearby yells.

Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Yosemite Sam have just deplaned from a Pacific Southwest Airlines flight. Instantly, the boarding lounge is merry bedlam.

Yosemite Sam holds up a grandmother with his mock cannon. Another youngster tugs at Bugs Bunny's cotton tail.

This is the kind of scene that can be found at San Francisco International Airport almost any day—and which an enterprising young man hopes will soon be a common sight at airports everywhere.

The characters, hired by PSA to entertain its passengers, are the brainechildren of Bob Claus, president of Cartoon Characters, Inc., of San Jose, Calif.

He rents his cast of 13 Warner Brothers cartoon characters to airlines, claiming they relieve boredom and nervousness of airport waits and "unwrap people from all their problems."

"Isn't it beautiful?" Claus asked, surveying the pandemonium in the lunge. "Happiness is dying at a very rapid pace. We want to get people smiling again."

Claus, 26, also said he is happy with the in-flight antics of the cartoon characters.

He said he struck upon the idea while sitting depressed one day at the San Jose Airport, wondering why nobody smiled.

Since their first PSA flight December 15, Calus said the comic figures have logged more than 29,000 miles.

The characters are played by unemployed actors, actresses, drama students and just plain hams.

"We're all crazy," said Cathy McIntosh, 22, an ex-television model who plays Daffy Duck. "It's so much fun to light up grumpy faces."

Claus, a former airport baggage handler, said he sold the idea to PSA by sending a man dressed as Bugs Bunny to the airline's executive offices.

PSA President J. Floyd Andrews "didn't believe it at first," Claus said, "but he signed a one-month contract with an option to renew."

Dwayne Wittmayer, PSA vice president of sales, said the cartoon characters are in keeping with the airline's motto of "putting the fun back in flying."

PSA also dresses its stewardesses in miniskirts and has conducted various inflight contests for passengers, awarding free dinners and vacation as prizes.

Pacifican Shot in S.F. State Office

There is still no known motive for what police are calling an unprovoked shooting attack on a Pacifica woman at the Department of Social Services office on Mission Street in San Francisco Friday.

Four shots from a 22-calibre pistol were fired at the woman, an employe of the Department of Social Services. Three shots missed their mark, but the fourth struck the victim in the right forearm.

She was treated at Mission Emergency Hospital.

The victim, Mrs. Kinuko Iwamoto, 31, of Andover Street, Pacifica, is an employe of the department, located at 965 Mission Street. She was walking toward her waiting husband in the lobby of the building when a woman approached her and demanded to know her name.

Without apparent provocation the woman began slapping Mrs. Iwamoto and dragging her toward the door.

Mrs. Iwamoto's husband, standing nearby, intervened to prevent the woman from harming his wife further, when the woman pulled out a pearl-handled pistol and began firing at Mrs. Iwamoto.

The assailant then fled the building with her six-year-old son in tow.

On patrol, Officers Bill Dyer and Chuck Collins heard the description of the woman suspect and a few minutes later, apprehended Leola Yeoman, 31, in the 1000 block of Market Street.

The child was taken to the Youth Guidance Center. Mrs. Yeoman, who gave her address as 504 Haight Street, San Francisco, was booked for attempted murder and possession of a concealed weapon after police allegedly found a .22-calibre pistol on her.

HUMAN RELATIONS

SAN ANTONIO — Airman Larry M. Rubio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Rubio of 821 Prairie Creek Drive, Pacifica, has completed Air Force basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex.

During his six weeks training, he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

A Pint of Blood Saves A Life Each Day of Year

By TOM POWELL

If you're a Peninsulan with AB Positive blood type — and if you've donated a pint to the Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank in the past five years — chances are you have something in common with Jay Myers of Millbrae.

He's alive today because of you.

This story was conceived several months ago as your narrator lay supine on a high cot, idly chatting with a friendly nurse and trying to ignore the mild discomfort of a needle in his forearm.

Giving blood is a simple procedure, requiring a brief physical examination and about five minutes donation time. But when the pint is obtained, and you've had your coffee and cookies, the blood bank takes over and the donor doesn't see what happens from there on.

I had always thought that, after a few tests, all the blood was transported whole or in plasma form to the recipient. I was wrong.

Mrs. Beatha Boysen, director of the Blood Bank (which operates on all-volunteer donations) made arrangements for us to follow a pint of blood from a donor's arm, through the laboratory on the premises in Burlingame, to the recipient.

In the lab, Chief Technologist Donald Rector told us that the treatment of pint number 1245 would be anything but simple. He pointed out that there would be more than a dozen tests, including a variety of cross-matching procedures. Then the blood could be separated, chilled, frozen or treated in several other ways for storage from 21 days to a year.

He showed us where the blood is stored —and in its new form, it didn't look familiar. The fresh blood in the plastic bag is a deep red. However, by the time it gets through one of the processes, the content of the bag has been reduced about 80 per cent and is now dark yellow.

Each of the processes is designed to serve a different need, both in storage and in recipient requirements.

We went from the lab (along with pint number 1245, which was now in a form known as a "red cell pack") to 484 Anita Drive in Millbrae. There we met the recipient, Jay Myers, and his wife Ethel.

Prior to January of 1967, Jay was a healthy, robust San Francisco certified public accountant who enjoyed hunting and fishing and always took a brisk walk downtown at lunchtime.

"I felt bad in November and December of 1966," said Jay, "and on New Year's Day I had to go to the hospital.

"My kidneys stopped. Like shutting off a faucet."

He has been on a kidney machine ever since.

For the first five or six weeks, Ethel recalls, Jay received two pints or more of blood per week.

In two days, when Jay became very seriously ill, he used more than 20 pints of blood. That was in April of 1971. A kidney transplant was attempted in 1968 but Jay's body immediately rejected it.

Since then, Jay has moved his CPA practice to his home where he can handle about 60 per cent of his former work load. He has to undergo dialysis regularly with a portable machine that cost $5,500 originally and costs several thousands more for annual maintenance.

Jay's illness has cost the Myers' some $30,000 over that which is covered by insurance and the expense will continue.

But Jay continues to live with a handicap that would have killed him twenty years ago. With an occasional blood transfusion and regular kidney treatment, Jay and Ethel wait for the day when another kidney transplant may be possible

That didn't hurt, did it?

New Presiding Overseer

A new presiding Overseer will represent the Daly City Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses at its forthcoming semi-annual Circuit Assembly.

W. L. Marks, Sr., the new appointee reports that the shift in responsible posts among local adherents to the faith is part of an over-all administrative change in all of the more than 27,000 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses around the world.

He says that his congregation, like all the others, now has more than one mature minister appointed as an Overseer of certain areas of the group's spiritual activities.

"This brings Jehovah's Witnesses still more fully in line with the Bible principles of operation that strengthened the first-century Christian congregation for some of its worst times of trial," Marks said.

"If is progressive, yet basic Bible moves like this that have kept Jehovah's witnesses one of the world's few thriving religions while traditional churches attract more and more attention for their divisions and dwindling attendances," he added. The Witnesses will have increased by some 150,000 adherents during the past year, he estimated, based on late figures.

The Circuit Assembly which he and other Bay-Area overseers and their congregations will attend January 13 and 14 at the East-Bay Richmond Memorial Auditorium will help them develop further their application of Bible principles, he stated.

It will stress the theme: "Let us serve Jehovah Whole-Souled."

Burlingame CC Elects

Lawrence H. (Larry) Putman, Burlingame-Hillsborough postmaster, will serve as 1973 president of the Burlingame Chamber of Commerce. Putman, a four-year member of the board of directors, is completing his second term as board secretary.

Active in community affairs, Putman is vice president of Burlingame Lions Club and director on the board of trustees, Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank. A graduate of Burlingame High School, College of San Mateo, and University of San Francisco, he is a 30-year veteran of the postal service. For the past six years he has been postmaster. Putman, his wife Mary, and family live on Cypress Avenue in Burlingame.

Elected to serve with Putman is Douglas Beetlestone, president-elect, manager of the Levy Bros. Burlingame store; Raymond (Mike) Brubaker, manager of the Burlingame office of West Coast Federal Savings and Loan Association, secretary to the board, and Andrew Chrystall, central area manager of Title Insurance and Trust Company, will serve a third term as treasurer. Executive Vice President William F. Hauser was elected to a sixth term as administrative officer of the Chamber.

Airline Reports New High

United Air Lines boarded a record 2,437,877 passengers in 1972 at the Bay Area's three airports, up 11 per cent over the previous year, according to Howard D. Putnam, regional manager of marketing.

Largest increase was at San Jose where the airline enplaned 78,836 passengers, 35 per cent more than in 1971.

"These figures indicate we're well on the way to recovery from the near-disasterous last couple of years when airline traffic fell well below all forecasts. Our goal for 1973 is to generate a 13 per cent increase over 1972," Putnam said.

Last month, United announced a plan to reduce air fares from heer to Hawaii by as much as 50 per cent beginning June 1. Pending approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board, United will operate a series of group charter tours to the Islands with round-trip fares ranging from $120 to $140 depending upon day of departure.

"For the first time, the traveling public will be able to take advantage of low-cost charter travel backed by the massive resources of a major airline," Putnam predicted.

United operates the world's largest fleet of jetliners — 361 — including 29 wide-bodied "jumbo" jets. Nine more big jets will be delivered to the airline in 1973.

Early in 1972, United established a Western Division headquarters at San Francisco in connection with a major re-organization and decentralization into three relatively autonomous operating divisions, each with its own "profit center." The Western Division is headed by general manager and senior vice president James J. Hartigan.

The company introduced several important marketing innovations during the year, including a revitalized "California Commuter" service between San Francisco and Los Angeles. live entertainment on flights between here and New York City and an extensive advertising and promotion effort to promote the airline's "Great Wide Way" to New York campaign.

The company also embarked on a multi-million dollar program to refurbish the interiors of its fleet of standard-sized jets to approximate the wide-bodied look of the 747s and DC-10s.

Pacifica Mayor on Board

Mayor Grace McCarthy of Pacifica was named last week by the Cities' Seleciton Committee as representative of the cities of San Mateo County on the Central Coast Regional Conservation Commission.

Her selection was by unanimous acclaim. as was that of Mayor Joe Marmont of Half Moon Bay as her non-voting alternate.

Mrs. McCarthy's name was put into nomination by San Mateo Mayor John J. Murray, who said that while some members of the committee might feel that her representation of a Coastside city would place her too close to some of the problems, he felt that her intimate knowledge of such sensitive problems more than qualify her for the position. All agreed.

Mrs. McCarthy expressed her appreciation for the unanimous vote and said she would do her utmost to represent the public interest.

Prior to voting on the commissioner, the Committee organized itself, carefully following rules and regulations outlined in the Coastal Initiative, Proposition 20, creating itself as the appointive body. County Clerk Marvin Church conducted the meeting and explained requirements pending selection of a permanent chairman.

Mayor Bud Lycett of Daly City was elected chairman and Murray was named vice chairman.

At the same time the committee scheduled an annual meeting for the third Monday in May, following the annual April reorgainzations of city councils. The law governing the selection committee requires that it be composed of one legislative representative of each city. The County Board of Supervisors Tuesday appointed its chairman, Gerald F. Day of Belmont, as its representative on the regional commission.

Matean's Car in Two Millbrae Collisions

Two persons were injured and three cars were damaged Tuesday evening in two auto accidents on El Camino Real in Millbrae.

Millbrae police said a car driven by Mafileo Manumua, 32, 2111½ North Delaware Street, San Mateo, was involved in both collisions.

Manumua was taken to Peninsula Hospital and is being treated in the intensive care unit for a head injury and facial lacerations. His condition was reported as satisfactory.

Also being treated in the intensive care unit is Tevita K. Faasisila, 46, 611 Heller Street, Redwood City, who is reported recovering satisfactorily from a head injury.

Police said Manumua's 1961 car was traveling south on El Camino Real when it was involved in a collision at the Center Street intersection. The second car was being driven south on El Camino by Lorry Kuhn, 33, 456 Beech Street, San Bruno, who had stopped at a red light, police say.

A few minutes later, police report, Manumua's car was involved in another collision with a car that had been stopped for a stop light at Millbrae Avenue. Police report the other car was being driven south along El Camino by Charles E. Bried, 61, 1051 Hatteras Drive, Foster City.

Officers say they are continuing to investigate the collisions.

Statistics, Fascinations

To avoid discussing the 49ers and Raiders, how about a column on some statistics, loops, we said we weren't go going to discuss the 49ers) and fascinations in sports? You agree? Then here it comes . . .

FOOTBALL:

If you haven't already noticed, professional running backs compiling a total of 1,000 yards rushing for a season are getting as common as four minute milers. This past season there were 10 of them, four from the National Conference (Brown, Washington 1216; Johnson, New York, 1182; Hill, Dallas, 1036, and Brockington, Green Bay, 1027) and six from the American (Simpson, Buffalo, 1251; Csonka, Miami, 1117; Hubbard, Oakland, 1100; Harris, Pittsburgh, 1055; Garrett, San Diego, 1031; and Morris, Miami, 1,029.) Additionally, Dave Hampton of Atlanta just missed with 995, while Chicago quarterback Bobby Douglass also came close with 968. In the back Johnny Riggins, who finished with 944.

This is odd — despite the fact that today's players are involved in a 14-game schedule as opposed to generally a 12-game schedule in the days when 1,000-yard seasons were truly rare — because contemporary teams are usually characterized as air machines, while many of the "old time" teams were thought of as grind 'em out types.

Johnny Unitas, dropped from the starting lineup before mid-season was compiled, still managed to finish fourth in passing in final NFL statistics.

The man closest to George Blanda in professional football longevity as an active player is the old Cleveland placekicker Lou Groza, who put in 17 seasons with the Cleveland Browns. But Blanda, in his 23rd year, has plenty of margin and his may eventually be the longest lasting record on the NFL books.

Ken Willard detractors can knock him all day, but they'll never be able to negate the cold fact that, according to our unofficial statistics, Willard this year passed up our own beloved Hugh McElhenny, not to mention Jim Nance, Bill Brown, and Dick Bass in total career rushing yardage, which should propel him into about tenth on the all-time list.

What pass receiver gets the most from his receptions? It appears to be Miami's Paul Warfield, whose average gain per catch of 21.1 is the highest among the top 81 career pass receivers in the NFL. Warfield with 266 catches going into this season, stood 55th on that list at the beginning of the season, but will probably vault in among the top 35 or so when this year's official stats are entered into the books.

Tops in average yards gained per reception among the first 10 is Lance Alworth, with a 19.1. Alworth, with 527 receptions, stands fourth on the all-time list. Best in the first 20 is Jimmy Orr, who averaged 19.8.

Want to win some bar bets? Try the following:

Green Bay has won the most league championships (11), but what team has won the most divisional titles? Answer: New York Giants, with 14 of 'em ('33, '34, '35, '38, '39, '41, '44, '56, '59, '61, '62, '63.)

In terms of statistical titles, what is the best all-time running team?

Answer: Chicago Bears, who have led the NFL in rushing 11 times.

Miami just set a team record for total yards gained rushing in a season, but can you name the team which has the best average yards gained per carry for a season?

Answer: The Browns, who averaged 5.7 yards per carry in 1963. Not coincidentally, that's the year Jimmy Brown set an all time individual season's rushing record with 1,863 yards for an average gain of 6.4 yards per carry.

Using the same criteria as we did for the question on the best all-time running team, can you name the best all-time passing team?

Answer: Washington, which nine times has led the NFL in passing efficiency.

Again, using the above criteria, what team is the all-time best in total offense?

Answer: You guessed it. Again, the Bears, Chicago has 12 times led the NFL in yards gained rushing and passing.

BASKETBALL:

Writers are always speculating on what may be the most durable record in sports. Our latest candidate is the one set by Wilt Chamberlain in the '61-62 season with the Warriors, when Wilt played in every game and averaged 48.5 minutes a game. But games in the NBA are only 48 minutes long, you say? That's EXACTLY why we think that may be sports most durable record. (In case you haven't figured it out, Wilt also played every minute of every overtime period that year.)

Speaking of great centers, Nate Thurmond entered this season eighth on the all-time rebounding list, and will most likely pass Dolph Schayes and Elgin Baylor to finish the season in sixth place.

Chamberlain, who for years was said to be a one dimensional player (score, score, score), is seventh on the all-time list in assists, with only such playmakers as Oscar Robertson, Bob Cousy, Guy Rodgers, Len Wilkins, Jerry West and Greer (not a pivot among them, take note) above him. And he'll probably pass Greer this season. Also note that the 6-5 Robertson is the tallest player on that list, aside from Chamberlain.

Want to win a bar bet on basketball? Ask who the second leading scorer was for the Philadelphia Warriors the night Chamberlain scored 100 points against the Knicks.

The answer is Al Attles, who, surprisingly, found enough leftovers to score 17 points — a good night for Attles under any circumstances.

The Knicks, that night in far away 1962, had three players over 30 points, with Richie Guerin pumping in 39, Willie Naulls adding 31, and some guy named Buckner hitting for 33. How would you like to have three men score over 30, tally a total of 147 points for the night, and lose to one man? Philadelphia, incidentally, scored 169 that night.

It's a wonder to this writer why more pro basketball players don't go to the underhand toss on free throws, considering the success Rick Barry has had with that old fashioned method. Barry has a pro lifetime percentage of 87.8. As an ABA player, he ranks number one all-time in this category, with 88. His percentage of 87.4 in NBA statistics ranks him behind only the great Bill Sharman, who compiled a lifetime career free throwing percentage of 88.4.

Other sundry free throw records held by Barry include twice having made 21 in a game, and once having gone 19, totals which rank among the highest in NBA history. He also holds the NBA record for most free throws made in one half (17) and in one quarter (14).

In the ABA, he has a record 23 for 23 in one game, and an All-Star Game record of six FT's in one quarter.

BASEBALL:

Perhaps the oddest set of statistics to come out of baseball last year were compiled by pitcher Woodie Fryman, who spent half a mediocre season with Philadelphia in the National League and half a great season with Detroit in the American League. What was odd about it was that he virtually duplicated his statistics in each half, one set of stats negative, one positive — sort of like a mirror reflection. Here's how they read:

Philadelphia — Won 4, Lost 10; ERA, 4.35; completed 3 of 23 starts; gave up 131 hits in 120 innings.

Detroit — Won 10, Lost 3; ERA, 2.05; completed 6 of 16 games, gave up 93 hits in 114 innings.

FINAL THOUGHT:

With all due respect, President Nixon should mind his own business in regard to pro football. Without local blackout football would become a studio game and eventually go out of big time sports, as boxing did when it got too much TV exposure. And besides, it seems to us that the President has a more important war to worry about — the real thing, not a mock conflict on an artificial battle ground.

Unique Outdoor Exhibits

Among the many new and unique outdoor accessories to be exhibited at the 1973 San Francisco Sports and Boat Show, January 12-21 at the Cow Palace, are non-skid yachting tableware, nautical antiques, aluminum anchors, and a pleasure craft radiotelephone.

For the woman who likes an attractive table, whether at home or at sea, the Yachting Tableware Company will display a new line of personalized, insulated dinnerware and mugs that will not skid even at an angle of 30 degrees.

The dishes come in boating patterns and colors and can be individualized with names, burgees and designs. $20,000 worth of old and treasured nautical and ships items will be exhibited and sold at the show. Copper and brass lanterns, compasses, telegraphs, binnacles, and old ship's wheels, imported from Taiwan, will be included in the display.

A new lightweight anchor made of aluminum, and thoroughly tested to do the job of the old heavy type anchor will be featured by Viking Aluminum Anchors.

Marine communications will be improved by the Triton two-way VHF-FM radiotelephone which has been designed by Modar Electronics, a division of Motorola, for the modern styles of today's pleasure boats.

This novel radiotelephone is a totally solid state unit with the durability required for marine safety.

Everything new to see in boats, camping equipment, fishing gear, recreation vehicles and vacation spots will be on display in the huge halls of the Cow Palace.

Show times are weekdays from 2 to 11 p.m.; Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m., and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Pack Boats At Boat Show

Now campers and hikers can pack boats on their backs right along with the rest of their camping gear.

The new inflatable Back Pack Boat, complete with folding paddle, foot pump, maintenance kit and nylon stuff bag weighs only eight pounds. Manufactured by Recreories, this one-man round-boat will easily support a man up to 250 pounds, has two separate air chambers and is made of tough neopryl.

The Back Pack Boat plus hundreds of other boats will be on display at the thirty-first annual San Francisco Sports and Boat Show January 12-21 at the Cow Palace.

Another off-beat boat to be displayed looks like a round tub, is made of welded aluminum and can be used for fishing or as a scuba or skin diving platform. It is made by Beyer Manufacturing, and is called the Catapon.

For those who can't decide whether to buy a boat or a trailer — the new Sea Camper, manufactured by Sea Camper Pacific, combines the best of both.

Sharks Beat Ravenswood

By DAN BERTELLOTTI
Post Correspondent

Oceana High basketball coach Don Novitsky is blessed with very durable players.

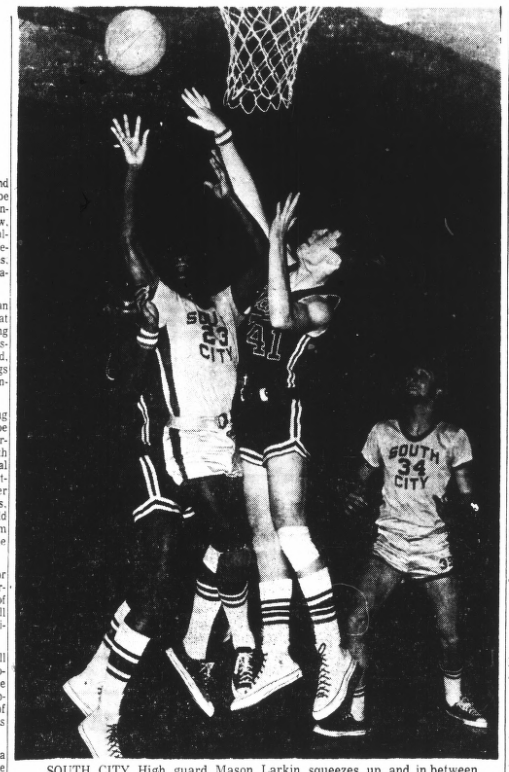
Novitsky only used five players in his game yesterday afternoon with visiting Ravenswood, but they managed to stave off the quick Trojans, 59-51.

The canny Sharks were playing a 1-2-2 zone against the visitors, which forced Ravenswood to the outside.

The Trojans had all their height graduate last year, they're a small team. So when center Bob Gates got into foul trouble in the third quarter, the game loosened up — in Oceana's favor.

The Trojans had trouble stopping the Sharks' 6-5 center Art Thomas inside that's how Gates got into foul trouble. But thought the 6-1 Gates couldn't keep the ball away from Thomas, he did battle him to a standstill on the boards.

The lead see-sawed throughout the first half with Oceana taking a one point lead at the buzzer.



SOUTH CITY High guard Mason Larkin squeezes up and in between Tamalpias' Hollis Owens (43) and Frank Jangura with an inside shot in Friday night game. The Warriors demolished Tam, 63-46.

Skyline Upsets Top-Ranked Quint

Post Correspondent
Times Correspondent

Skyline College's new brand of offense paid off last night with the Trojans' biggest win of the season.

And besides propelling Skyline over top-ranked Cuesta, 101-84, it gives the Trojans a shot at their own tournament crown.

Skyline meets Santa Ana at 9 o'clock tonight in the San Bruno Campus gym, following the CSM-Cuesta third place game at 7 o'clock.

Few teams would have kept up with the Trojans last night as they worked their passing game offense for a school record 48 field goals out of 83 for 57.8 percent.

"Seven out of the last eight state tournaments have been won with some form of passing game," Skyline Coach Walt Riffiel said. "And we believed we had the good jump shooters to play that game this year with Rich O'Regan and Tom Sever—plus Herlest Eastman who just got a cast off his arm and will return next week."

Sever scored 15 of Skyline's first 15 points last night, mostly on jumpers and drives (including a three-point play) and had 21 of his 23 points in the first half as the Trojans led by as much as 11 and held a 47-44 mid-game advantage.

That didn't last long, however. Cuesta streaked for 12 straight points early in the second half and appeared in command at 58-49—especially with 6-4 guard Dan Lintner starting to connect.

But then the Cougars got a taste of Skyline's 6-4 Ken Mims, a reserve frosh guard who tallied 21 of his 23 points in the second half. And he sparked the Trojans to streaks of nine points to catch Cuesta at 68-all) and 12 points (to take an 84-74 advantage with six minutes to play).

Cuesta had to settle for an even exchange with Skyline the next five minutes, despite some fine outside shooting by Cougar guard Paul Kinne. And then the Trojans wound things up with a final nine-point late minute spree to tuck away their third straight win for a 5-7 season.

Veteran Skyline forward Jeff Wellemever also hit important inside buckets during all three of those Trojan scoring bursts and finished with 19 points.

But Cuesta's Kinne took point honors with 27.

Falcons Drop 6th

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondent

With one eye on the clock, one on the game and his mind on the calendar, Crestmoor Coach Pete Pontaq watched the Falcons drop their sixth game in ten outings to the visiting Washington Eagles, 72-69.

Washington has a small, talented and nomadic group of players who on four occasions have played Peninsula schools with just six players and had a 3-1 mark to show for it.

Yesterday, they brought "all" eight athletes but were still pushed into an extra period. Were it not for some deadly free throw accuracy (16 X 18) Crestmoor might have pulled it out.

As it was, the Falcons had to rally from five points back in the last 95 seconds and even then it took a great offensive rebound and basket by Rich Suarez off two missed free throws with five seconds left in regulation play to send it into the extra period.

"A win would have been good, but we are more concerned now with next week's league opener," said Pontaq. "We have to get Rich Jarvis (Crestmoor's starting center who has been out sick for two weeks) playing time and Steve Bowman back again and everybody else healed up."

Despite missing the 12-point per game offense of starting guard Bowman, the Falcons got good shooting from forward Mark Rosekind with 15 and guard Jeff Kollmann with 21.

New Home For YWCA In Church

The San Mateo County YWCA will start 1973 in its new home at 560 El Camino Real, San Bruno.

Using the lower floor of the San Bruno Methodist Church from Monday thru Saturday, the YWCA will offer classes to men and women, boys and girls. Tours will also originate from the center and there will be club activities.

The public is invited to drop in, register for classes and activities, and also let the YWCA know what they would like to see the YWCA do in this area. Volunteers are needed badly and anyone with spare time should contact the Y.

The telephone number has been changed from 756-7370 to the new number of 588-7366, 588-7367, and 588-7368. Registration for classes will begin January 2nd with most classes starting the following week.

Even though the Y has a new center, classes will be held throughout the north part of the county. The following is a list of classes and locations:

Benjamin Franklin Jr. High School, Daly City — Tennis.

Daly City War Memorial Building, Daly City — Polynesian Dance.

Dance Studio, South San Francisco — Polynesian Dance.

Harding Park Golf Course, San Francisco — Golf.

Sharp Park Library, Pacifica — Ballet Trimnastics.

Temple Methodist Church, San Francisco — Trimnastics, Yoga.

Westlake Lutheran Church, Daly City — Widget World Nursery School.

YWCA Center, 560 El Camino Real, San Bruno — Trimnastics, Investing and Money Management, Polynesian Dance, Dance Fundamental, Mexican Cookery, Bridge Lessons and Play, Crochet-Knitting, and Drawing and Painting.

Contact the YWCA Center for registration and more information regarding classes. Registration for classes must be made in advance.

New clubs will also be formed at the center. The Y is interested in knowing whether child care is important to participants. The center will give the YWCA a new opportunity to explore and build.

It is through your help that this can be accomplished.

Colts Win —Thanks To Flu Bug

By JERRY LITTRELL
Post Correspondene

The flu bug often has been blamed for a team defeat, but for El Camino High School this time it meant a victory.

Flu sidelined one Colt starter and forced forward Mike Jiggetts into the starting lineup for the first time this year. All the junior forward did was score 20 points, 17 in the second half, to give El Camino a 57-44 win over Crestmoor. The Colts are now 1-5, while the Falcons dropped to a 4-7 record.

Jiggetts brought Camino to its first tie score, 34-34, when he took a stolen pass from teammate Rich Wright and went in for a quick layin. Most of his other offense, however, came from soft, high-arching jumpers outside the Falcons' zone.

Grade Separation Priorities

San Carlos Gets Low Rating

A potential grade separation project across the Southern Pacific railroad tracks in San Carlos has been listed as No. 66 on a 78-item priority funding list issued by the state Public Utilities Commission.

Funds allocated by the state Highway Commission from a special grade separation fund, usually will not cover more than 17 projects a year, however.

Money is granted only to those cities and counties who are ready to begin construction and have their own funds and planning in hand. San Carlos City Administrator C. Robert Allen said recently that the grade separation there is still in the preliminary feasibility study stage and is nowhere near ready.

"We always go before them (the PUC) so they'll know who we are," Allen said. "If we got everything ready and then applied they would only ask where we've been all these umpty-ump years."

He added that the "Holly Street" designation on the PUC priority list is used because Holly crosses the tracks. But engineers now are examining three other potential grade crossing sites and roughly estimating costs. Allen went on. Their findings could be reported to City Hall in January or February.

A PUC spokesman has reported that 16 or 17 projects a year normally are funded, but that with more money than usual this year the allocations could "get very well down the list."

Should a local agency not be ready with its project the Highway Commission moves on to the next lower priority item. San Carlos's Holly project has been as high as sixteenth, Allen recalled.

The $5 million originally set aside for the state grade separation fund has grown to $15 million this year, plus an $11,468,033 carryover from 1972, leaving the commission with $26,468,033 to allocate.

Parts of the carryover resulted from the city of Belmont not taking its allocation in 1972, after being listed No. 1 on the priority list for its improvement of the crowded and dangerous Ralston Avenue crossing.

But an overpass plan was defeated soundly by the voters in last April's municipal election—after the city had spent $328,727 in its own gas tax funds for planning and property acquisition. The Highway Commission was almost ready to hand over the check, for just over $1 million, when the project was canceled.

Belmont City Manager James P. DeChaine yesterday said no plans have been made to re-apply for grade separation funds

Congress Gets Good Support

San Bruno's Congress for Community Progress, a town hall meeting, is receiving enthusiastic support from the city's residents.

This is evidenced by the impressive initial return of questionnaires which were mailed out in the city's December water bills.

The questionnaires will continue to be mailed out through January so that every resident in the city will have the opportunity to help plan their Congress.

The purpose of the questionnaire is to determine what San Bruno residents feel are areas of priority within their city and what general subjects they would like to have discussed at the Congress.

The questions have been outlined under headings such as Economic Development, City Services, Transportation, Youth and Education, Recreation and Culture, and Civic Pride and Beautification.

"What do you like most about our community?" and "What's your pet peeve about San Bruno?" are a small sample of the questions designed to give the residents a chance to not only "tell it like it is" but to participate firsthand in the future growth of their city.

The Congress for Community Progress will be held all-day Saturday, March 17, at Skyline College.

PGE to Increase Project Funding

Pacific Gas and Electric Company will increase its allocation for undergrounding existing overhead electric distribution lines from $10 million in 1972 to $11 million in 1973, according to A. F. Vial, Northern San Mateo County District Manager.

"Since 1968, when PG&E began its underground conversion program, we have increased our allocations each year to $500,000. Next year, this rate of annual increase will be doubled to $1 million," Vial said.

The total allocation for undergrounding distribution lines in the six-year period through 1973 amounts to $56 million he said. The program applies throughout PG—E's Northern and Central California electric service area.

Major local projects include Knowles Avenue, where overhead lines and poles will be removed from Junipero Serra Boulevard to Mission Street and underground will be installed at a cost of $214,106.

Also just getting started is the Mission Street undergrounding project which is expected to cost in excess of $400,000 when final estimates are complete.

Undergrounding projects are designated by the Daily City Council after public hearings.

"Members of this agency determine the streets and areas, with highest priorities going to major thoroughfares and places with civic, scenic or historical interest," Vial said.

PG&E's local allocations are based on the ratio of electric customers in each community or county to the total number of customers the company serves on its Northern and Central California system.

'Happy,' Like In Laughable

HAPPY NEW YEAR — 1972 was a Happy New Year! I don't mean "Happy" like in gay, but "Happy" like in laughable. Biggest laughs of the year came from local government. The Federal Fellas couldn't put their act together. You might say they "bombed" both at home and abroad — especially abroad.

BUT HERE ON the home front where the constant battle of the tax dollar is fought by a precious few fanatics (that's what you call folks that get up and give 'em Hell more than twice a year) the laughs were plenty. 1972 went out with a lot of laughs. That was the year that was.

WE REMEMBER how we chuckled over decisions of the Jefferson Elementary School District's Personnel Board which declined to investigate a "leak" to local news media by one or another of the school trustees and-or administration concerning a classified employee's problems. The reason they gave for decharges against the district and they might have to hear an appeal on the subject and they didn't want to pollute the atmosphere with any prejudice. The three-member impartial Personnel Commission must have forgotten it was their own Personnel Director, Mr. David Pia, who first investigated the matter and leveled the original charges. Boy, that's one humorous bunch of folks.

AND HOW ABOUT that JESD trustee Jim Cranna who thinks the news leak is nothing short of abominable. He wants an immediate investigation of this alleged wrongdoing. Trustee Cranna, for those who haven't followed the event of the past year, is the trustee who is quoted as being "his own person," or words to that effect, even if he does run with the male majority of the Board on every matter that amounts to anything, including censure of his two fellow (oops, rather female) trustees, Dorothy Adams and Beverly Forrester.

ONE OF THE FEMALE trustees threatens to point out such laughable matters as an employee of the JESD who was sent to a top level school official's home on school time to plane a door that was stuck, the use of school kitchen equipment to prepare goodies for an official's daughter's wedding, and some baked goods for yet another official's election win reception. But like, Mr. Cranna says, these abominable things must be investigated. Perhaps to consolidate the investigation the credit card capers might be lumped in.

THERE ARE OTHER things we could laugh about . . . and perhaps we should. Some of the Daly City city council appointments to various commissions (one in particular), is in our estimation, a real joke bordering on gallows humor. The Statement made by City Attorney Al Polonsky concerning the Forrester-Tomasello "conflict lawsuit" where the judge, in a mind-boggling decision, leaned in favor of Tomasello while noting something about using "bad judgment" among other things.

THERE ARE OTHER things equally amusing that have been going on and these will probably be brought out during the New Year. It will be an interesting year — we guarantee it.

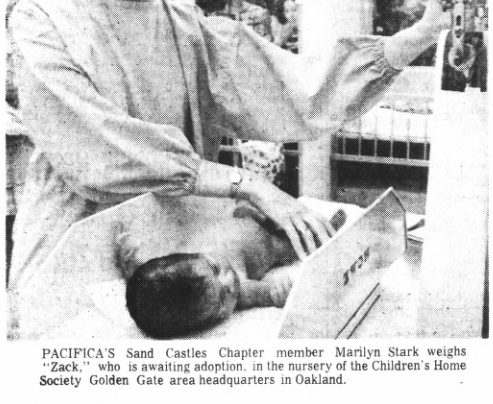
COLMA, BY THE WAY, was continually in the news last year. Chief Raymond Ottoboni's non-existent police reserve force seemed to crop up from time to time in headlines. It's interesting how Colma's City Council works. The city must have a police reserve force because we've heard and seen some of them. And yet you'll never get anyone in City Hall to talk about it. This is another city that demonstrates democracy in action. The city slogan should be "What the home folks don't know won't hurt 'em." Perhaps they could put that in Latin on the police reserve shoulder patches.

AND WHILE ALL this is going on in city after city, while District Attorney Keith Sorenson's office turns out opinion after opinion concerning PESD policy and procedure (Most not favorable to the school administration) and while the people are being taxed into the ground, one local publication continues to practice what I can only consider to be a conspiracy of silence.

YES, 1972, WAS AN extremely laughable year. We hope this year the folks will come to their senses before their dollars are laughed away at conferences that last year ranged from Montreal, Canada to Florida, Hawaii, Louisiana and Carmel-by-the-Sea (plus points in between).

PRESIDENT HARRY S TRUMAN, whose favorite saying was "If you can't stand the heat keep the Hell out of the kitchen," is gone. He had a tough row to hoe and everything he ever did or said has already been spread over every page of every newspaper around the world. A product of the so-called "Pendergast Machine" out of Kansas City, President Truman was one of the world's most controversial leaders, bar none. His decision to drop the atomic bomb first on Hiroshima and next on Nagasaki, over the voiciferous protests of scientists and historians, resulted in the death of more than 100,000 persons immediately and is still responsible for malformed babies and death each year — some 27 years after war's end. This decision should bring forth lasting bitterness from the Japanese people.

LAST THURSDAY NIGHT I attended a New Year's celebration at the Japan Cultural Center in San Francisco. Also attending were some 500 Japanese, many from the "Old Country" who lived the experience of war and its horrors. At the outset of the program, the emcee asked the audience to rise, to bow their heads and to observe a moment of silence "in respect and tribute to that great American President, Harry S Truman." Not a word, not a cough, not a sound was heard as 500 people stood with bowed heads for a full minute. Poet-Clergyman John Donne was right when he wrote "No man is an island."



PACIFICA'S Sand Castles Chapter member Marilyn Stark weighs "Zack," who is awaiting adoption, in the nursery of the Children's Home Society Golden Gate area headquarters in Oakland.

Adoption Rules Change; Good Parents Needed

The adoption picture has changed a great deal in recent years.

Just a few years ago, most adoption agencies in California were actively seeking adoptive families for the many thousands of babies entrusted to them by young unmarried mothers who had decided that adoption into a loving two-parent permanent home was the best choice for their children's future.

Today, the same private and public adoption agencies are overwhelmed by the ever-increasing number of couples who wish to adopt white, caucasian infants, either as a solution to their own childless state, or as a contribution to solving the problems caused by over-population.

Many Babies

In very recent ears, however, many babies who might have been born as a consequence of the increased sexual freedom of today's young people, aren't. They are prevented by the pill or other forms of contraception. Or they are aborted legally under California's liberalized abortion law.

Although the number of children available for adoption has declined, the number of illegitimate children born in California has reached record heights. Many of these children are of minority or mixed racial background. But most are children for whom their white unwed mothers have made other plans than adoption.

Some of these young girls make no plans at all, but simply react to the many pressures they feel from boyfriends, parents, and friends. First, there is a pressure to solve the problem with a quick abortion. Many girls simply do this without finding out much about the reasons why they got pregnant, other than the superficial physical facts.

Often these girls become pregnant again unless the underlying causes are found and resolved.

If the girl decides, however, either for emotional, religious, or other reasons, that abortion is not the choice for her, she has to face what CHS professionals who work with young people call a tremendous "peer group pressure" to keep her baby.

Four out of five young nwed mothers are making that choice today, often trying to share responsibility for parenting with their own parents.

Good Homes

In some cases it works out very well and the young woman (or her parents) is able to provide a good home for the child. Often, however, the still immature young mother is unable to balance her own needs for growth, education, and personal development with the needs of her child.

These children often end up indefinitely in foster care, either through action resulting from neglect and abandonment or because their mothers make arrangements for their physical care and intend to decide at some future time what to do about them.

Many children stay in this limbo of foster care for years and lose the opportunity for self-identification as a member of a secue and loving family.

Other young girls, after a few years of trying conscientiously and lovingly to raise their babies alone, realize that for the best interests of the child and for their own sakes they must come to the often heartbreaking decision that permanent placement in an adoptive home is necessary.

CHS and other adoption agencies report an increasing number of toddlers and older infants brought to them for adoptive planning.

The statewide non-profit Children's Home Society, which has been counseling young women and placing children for almost 80 years, is concerned by statistics that reveal three out of four unmarried mothers make the decision and plan for their babies' futures without receiving any professional counseling — even though this help is available without charge.

No Opportunity

CHS is concerned because these young mothers have no opportunity for realistic evaluation of all their alternatives. If the decision is to keep the child, the girl may attend group sessions with others who are keeping their children. She can also discuss her problems and get professional help whenever she feels like it.

If she decides that adoption is the best plan for her child, the agency has many couples waiting to give and share love with her baby. While she is making up her mind, the agency provides temporary boarding care.

Because of their concern for young mothers and their children, CHS and other agencies are rying very hard to let young people know that there are trying very hard to let young unwed mother and that there is help that will benefit her no matter what her ultimate decision is.

The fact remains that at this time there are fewer very young infants available to prospective adoptive parents, but there are still many children who do need good adoptive homes.

Couples interested in adopting may call CHS and be invited to an orientation meeting where they may learn more about the types of children available.

(Donna Starr Photos)

MOST OF THE CHILDREN available for adoption through the Children's Home Society are placed in foster homes and brought in to the clinic for frequent check-ups. Here foster parent Mrs. Anthony Ventimeglio presents baby Louise to Sand Castle member Betty Chandler.

Question of Difference

By LORENE BEASLEY
Editor of BBB Barometer

What is the value difference between the three-pound economy size for $1.98 and the 33 1-3 ounce Jumbo size of the same product that sells for 61 cents? To add even more to the confusion, you may find a 20-ounce regular size box available for 43 cents.

Most people can figure out the size that offers the best cost per ounce value, but it takes time. United pricing solves this problem.

Unit pricing is a plan in which the price of the merchandise is shown on a package in two ways. The total price of the item is shown and in addition, there is a price per unit shown. For example: If a one-pound package of shelled walnuts sells for $1.60, this price would be shown on the package.

Additionally, the unit price of 10 cents per ounce would be shown on the package. If a ten-ounce package of walnuts sold for $1.10, the package would show the total price of $1.10 and it would also disclose the unit price of 11 cents an ounce.

The walnuts in the one pound package cost one cent less per ounce than the walnuts in the ten ounce package. In this manner, the unit pricing information gives the shopper a chance to quickly compare the relative unit cost of different size packages.

The price per unit does not take quantity needs into account. If the consumer needed only the ten ounces of walnuts and the other six ounces would spoil before they could be used, the smaller size would be the proper one to purchase even though it costs more per ounce.

Unit pricing does not consider brand or quality difference. Assume that a box of Brand X contains 14 ounces of a like product at a small price of 3.8 cents per ounce. If the taste of Brand X is preferable, the consumer might still prefer to buy that product in spite of its higher unit price.

Who Are The Swingers?

Who are the swingers — the Democrats who voted for Richard Nixon in the last election? The answer to this question can tell us much about past and future campaigns.

A study of the vote in the Bay Area reveals a great deal about the swingers — who they are, and who they aren't.

The six Bay Area counties (Marin, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, and Contra Costa), taken together, supported George McGovern by 12,322 votes. He carried Alameda (55 percent) and San Francisco (56.1 percent) and these majorities were sufficient to make up losses in the other four counties. Nonetheless, the President ran well ahead of Republican registration in each county, securing approximately 21.5 percent of non-Republican votes throughout the area.

Comparing the percent of non-Republican votes with "top of ticket" results for the last ten years, it is seen that the Bay Area secured more swing votes for the President than any other top-of-the-ticket Republican candidate in the recent past. While Governor Reagan carried the area in 1966, he claimed 19 percent of the non-Republican votes. Regan that year captured 27.3 percent of switchers statewide as compared with the 1972 statewide switch ratio of 26.6 percent.

It is impossible to precisely analyze population components. Nonetheless, examination of carefully-selected precincts gives a useful qualitative impression so long as one appreciates the essential limitation of numbers.

Blacks remained with George McGovern. Forty test precincts in five counties with a combined Republican registration of 6.4 percent showed the President as receiving 9.5 percent of the vote. Turnout in these precincts was dismal — 71.1 percent.

Fifteen precincts in three counties were tested for Spanish surname results. Republican registration was 12.2 percent, and the vote for Richard Nixon was 27.8 percent. Turn out was 70.2 percent.

Six consolidated precincts were tested from San Francisco's Chinatown. Republican registration was 28.4 percent, and the President received an astonishing 59.7 percent of the vote. Turnout was 72.9 percent.

The youth vote was difficult to measure. Spread out among the population, youth is impossible to identify geographically. Polling techniques would be required, and the examination upon which this article is based was entirely geographic (the analysis of the vote in selected precincts).

Even campus results of such a study are highly unreliable, but some useful information can be gleaned. Tests in eight campus areas showed both low Republican registration (17.1 percent) and Nixon vote (25.7 percent). The President's share of the Republican vote was highest at the Catholic colleges (University of San Francisco, St. Mary's, and Santa Clara), and at Stanford he ran under Republican registration (20.2 percent vs 26.5 percent).

The best clue to finding swingers is economic. By tracing patterns of income and switch voting, valuable information is elicited. One way to check this was a comparison of switch vote percentages by cities with median income figures from the 1970 census. Ranking cities by non-Republican support for the President, a high correlation of switch vote and middle income ($10,000-$13,000) appears. Of twenty three cities with switch ratios higher than the Bay Area average of 21.5 percent, seventeen were in the $10,000-$13,000 income range, and only four cities among it below the regional average were in this income range. Significantly, two of these cities have large black populations and a third (Albany) has a large college population.

Income trends were also checked on a selected precinct basis, and the above findings were confirmed. Taken together, the two methods identify the switcher as a middle income white. Minority voters (excepting Chinese) and non-Republicans of higher income remained more party loyal.

The President was elected by a coalition composed of switchers and Republicans. The national majority he attained was massive and "new" in that it included the South, in California it was "more" of the usual pattern.

The Servants Of an Age

Once we had the weeklies: "Collier's" and "Look" and "Life" and "Saturday Evening Post."

They were the servants of an age that produced editors who looked upon America "as the dynamic center of ever-willing spheres of enterprises, America as the training center of the skillful servants of mankind, America as the Good Samaritan, really believing again that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and America as the powerhouse of the ideals of freedom and justice."

Now they are gone—the great weeklies and their dedication to journalism and photography—and with them, their editors and reporters who believed with Edward K. Thompson of "Life" that journalism exists to make "a record of the events of the next day or the next week." For such men, reporting had the validity of history."

"This is history," Editor Thompson wrote, "that doesn't have to be stuffy or forbidding — and isn't. It represents the many aspects of an era." To reinforce their weekly "histories," the editors invited the makers of that history to write for their magazines. Winston Churchill, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman, John F. Kennedy, Richard M. Nixon, and many others used the opportunity.

The weeklies pictured the record of a generation that Albert Lake calls the most ambitious of history. This was a generation of depression children who grew up to fight against Germany and Japan and against North Korea and North Vietnam. It was a generation that came home from war to push all businesses and professions to heights undreamed of by previous Americans.

The weeklies appeared in the era of the movies and radio and lusted into the age of television. With pictures and words they followed the stars and was "the most important instrument of journalism which has been invented since the printing press."

Photo-journalism brought a revolution to the publishing world. Text books changed so pictures illustrated every concept. Novels started coming with actual photographs instead of line drawings. Thus was unlocked the works of the masters. First readers, then movie makers, then the public discovered Dickens and Shaw and Shakespeare.

"The weeklies gave warmth and humor to the news," wrote Editor Thompson, "and to dramatic events and folklore, fact and philosophy." They provided the "satisfying work of trained observers, anonymous reporters and name writers — who recorded great and small (but also important events with the trained skill of the professional."

Now the weeklies are gone and one wonders if anything can take their place. One wonders if America will not regret that she let them die.

Meanwhile the aura of the weeklies remains in the anthologies of the articles that have been printed in them. These may be borrowed from your public library. Among them are "Great Readings From Life," "Battle, True Stories of Combat In World War II" from the Saturday Evening Post; "Danger" also from the "Post" which is a collection of stories of mystery and suspense. "Post" which is an annual of stories of daring and adventure that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, "The Saturday Evening Post's "Carnival of Humor," and Look's series containing such titles as "Look At America" and "Look at The U.S.A." and "Religions in America."

1972 Review: Security Was Major Concern of County Government

By BOB HEMINGWAY

"Identification and search of person and packages may be required of anyone entering this building."

Those words on signs affixed to the public entrances of all buildings in the County Government Center at Redwood City reflect what probably posed the biggest problem for the county during 1972 — security of county buildings and facilities.

Faced with jail breaks and bomb threats, county officials moved to tighten security by authorizing security and surveillance systems at a cost expected to top $300,000 when they are completed.

Emphasis was on the county jail on the fourth floor of the Hall of Justice where nine prisoners took off last March 22. Officials say that a sophisticated TV surveillance system, plus other procedures, including strengthening of ceilings, preclude another mass escape.

The courtrooms in the Hall of Justice have had TV cameras installed for quick scanning of the room, with the judge or his bailiff having only to push a button to alert a deputy in the sheriff's patrol bureau where a TV monitor can pick up all the TV stations in the building, public corridors as well as the courtrooms.

Still being installed is an electronic "screen" system around the Hall of Justice. It will sound an alarm in the patrol bureau should anyone approach within a certain distance of the building.

Also nearing completion is a steel and reinforced glass cage which projects into the north lobby of the Hall of Justice. It will be manned around the clock by two sheriff's deputies for observation of those coming and going. Elevators going to the jail are located in the north lobby.

Another security measure has been the elimination of all public night meetings in the Hall of Justice, forcing several commissions and boards, as well as the Redwood City Council and Planning Commission, to find other locations for their night sessions.

Of a more hopeful nature, county voters acceding to the demands of ecology, voted in the November 7 general election to authorize a 10-cent property tax for a period of 10 years to finance purchase and development of parks and open space.

County voters also joined voters statewide in approving passage of the iciative measure creating a coastline commission and restricting development of the county and state coastline.

The county again was involved in trying to provide a mass transit system for its residents. The San Mateo County Transit Development Project is in the process of a study for a system to extend mass transit from San Francisco International Airport to the Santa Clara County line where it would tie in with any system developed by the latter county.

The airport-county line link would be an extension of a transit facility being planned from the Bay Area Rapid Transit terminus in Daly City to the airport.

The Board of Supervisors has indicated that voters may be called upon as early as next November to give their approval to a program for financing the county mass transit extension.

A record county budget of more than $130 million was approved by the board in June, necessitating a three-cent tax rate increase.

County officials attributed much of the budget hike to state-mandated programs for health and welfare recipients.

Because of a cut-off of state financing, the county closed its Canyon Hospital, t ransferring the elderly persons being cared for there to private nursing homes or to Chope Community Hospital.

The Health and Welfare Department currently is engaged in a survey to determine if Chope Hospital itself should be closed and contracts arranged for care of county patients in private and district hospitals.

At the November election, voters selected William H. Royer as a member of the Board of Supervisors. Rover, a Redwood City realtor, will succeed longtime board member William M. Werder, who didn t seek re-election because of ill health. The new supervisor will join the board at its January 9 meeting.

Superior Judge J. A. Branson, a veteran member of the county bench, announced his retirement, and Central District Municipal Judge William A. Lanam was elected to succeed him. Judge Lanam will take the oath as a Superior Judge January 9.

It was not a good year for county agriculture. Plagued by drought early in the year, then by flooding from the heavy fall rains and later by freezing weather, the county's flower, and crop loss amounted to more than $4 million, according to County Agricultural Commissioner Claude Bridges.

Millbrae Will Celebrate Its 25th Birthday This Year

By GEORGE GOLDING

Twenty-five years as a city will be celebrated by Millbrae this month as the city moves into a number of projects designed to make the community a better place to live.

City Administrator Richard Watson said one of the most significant city accomplishments during the past year was the first comprehensive general plan review, which is expected

One of the first items to be purchased under this plan, is a "snorkle" fire truck which Fire Chief Bob Kohler has wanted for years.

"Now we have the money for it," Watson says.

There is also money set aside for a $3,300,000 sewage line to be built jointly by Millbrae and Burlingame from their bayside disposal plants to the South San Francisco pumping station, and then to mid-bay.

In the 25 years since Millbrae has been a city, it has built a city hall, library, fire station, and police station, with adjoining park.

A city recreation center and park, just west of civic center, has also been built and is proving one of the most popular locations in Millbrae.

Three park sites have been completed this past year, in Millbrae Meadows, Central, and Mills Estate locations.

Another effort which began in 1972 and is to be completed in 1973 is the beautification of median strips along El Camino Real. The design was created by the city's Beautification Commission, appointed a year ago.

By July of the coming year, cable television service is expected to be available to the entire city, in completion of work under way for several months.

As 1972 ended, City Administrator Watson looked both forward and backward in time, recalling that this year has seen the end of low water pressure in some parts of the hilly community which had been plagued by such problems for years.

He noted that Millbrae citizens had taken several actions which might be termed significant, including a vote on bonds to purchase the archdiocese property, which "barely lost."

A public meeting is scheduled for January 11, for open discussion of possible actions the city might take to acquire the property, or whether it should.

Two notable personnel changes have occurred in city government, the election of Barney Spera to the city council from outside the usual roll of community participants; and the retirement of Catherine Goodheart as librarian and appointment of Mary Cooney as new chief of the city's library.

Changes are not confined to the City Hall.

Millbrae Chamber of Commerce is going through a period of reappraisal, "reviewing its goals and objectives," and has asked for aid and advice of the city as well as anyone else who is interested. A decision on what direction the Cramber will follow, is expected within the next few months.

YMCA Series On Behavior

The Peninsula YMCA has announced that final plans have been made to present a series of lectures and discussion dealing with behavior problems of youth from the pre-school to high school level.

Child psychiatrist and YMCA Board Chairman William H. Ayres will act as moderator and coordinator of the series. Guest lecturers will include physicians Hugh W. Ridehuber, David Burk, Noel H. Morrell and David A. Schwartz.

The series begins Wednesday, January 10, from 8 to 10:30 p.m. and will continue each Wednesday through February 14 at the Peninsula YMCA, 240 North El Camino Real, San Mateo. All parents, teachers and professionals dealing with youth are invited to participate. The series cost for non "Y" members is $15 total, or $3 a lecture.
